

My name is Edgar M. Bronfman. I am president of the World Jewish Congress, of the World Jewish Restitution Organization and am chairman of the International Board of Governors of Hillel, the Foundation for Jewish Campus Life. I have had the good fortune to meet Nancy Salzman, President and CEO of Executive Success Programs, and to spend time with her in her professional capacity as well as socially. I highly recommend her as one of the most influential females in my life. Her work is incomparable, honest and she doesn't suffer fools gladly, if at all. She is making a marked difference to the betterment of this world, and her devotion to the ethics that must become a basic part of every human being, or we may all perish is inspirational. I cannot recommend her too highly.

It is my experience that when you are living life you should be learning, and when you are learning, life has much more meaning. So when my daughters asked me to get involved with Executive Success Programs, I thought the worst thing that could happen would be that I'd learn something. I learned a good deal.

I spent five full days, and I was taught much. Basically, for me it was a new way of looking at the world, not based on any hokey philosophy, but based on truth. Along with the group I learned to look at life through much clearer glasses than ever before. Once we learned to seek the truth outside of ourselves, we were then given the opportunity to seek our own truths. We learned to look deep into our psyches, to get rid of hang-ups that had plagued us for years, and to have a new understanding of who we really are.

I am delighted I took five days out of my life and am anxious to continue my learning as soon as another opportunity arises. If everyone were to go through this training, the world would be a much better and safer place to live.
